

SUTHERLAND SAYS HE'S CANDIDATE

Will Go Before Legislature of 1911 to Succeed Himself as Senator.

WILL PARTICIPATE IN COMING CITY ELECTION

Favors Straight Citizens Ticket as Against Republican-Democratic Combination.

United States Senator George Sutherland returned to Salt Lake City Wednesday night and in an interview with a Tribune representative at the Alta club announced himself as a candidate for re-election to the senate of the United States.

After some conversation, the reporter asked:

"Are you a candidate for re-election, Senator?"

"Yes, I am, or, rather, I shall be a candidate for re-election."

The statement made by the senator was positive and without qualification, so that D. C. Jack, who has now that there is another Richmond in the field.

When congress adjourned, Senator Sutherland went to Blue Hill, Mo., near Ellsworth, Senator Hale's old home. He felt that he needed a rest, said he, and his wife and daughter were there waiting for him. The senator spent the time tramping and rowing in the lake and rain, but evidently enjoyed the seclusion.

"I had promised to go there," said the senator, "and did not come out for the G. A. R. encampment. I could not have gone until the encampment of the Grand Army was half over. I should have liked to have got here if I could have been of any particular service, but I understand that everything passed off admirably."

The senator was assured that everything was successfully carried out.

Will Be in City Election.

The reporter then drifted on to a discussion of local political affairs. The senator said he was not familiar with the local situation.

"What do you favor, senator, a citizens ticket or a straight Republican and Democratic ticket, or a combination of both?"

In preference to a bi-partisan ticket, I favor a citizens ticket. I am not inclined to favor any combination of Republicans and Democrats. I cannot imagine any circumstances that would arise to justify such a thing. But I have not given the matter any particular thought. Of course, I shall participate in the city election; I participate in all elections."

Some time next month Senator Sutherland will leave for Wisconsin and, with Senator Clapp and Senator La Follette, will investigate the general Indian question in that state. The Indians have some complaint that requires attention and the senator is a member of the sub-committee on investigation. Then he will return to take for the visit of President Taft and will remain in the city during the election, when he will leave for Washington to attend a meeting of the committee on revision of United States laws, of which he is a member.

The work of revising the laws of the United States, with special reference to the courts and their procedure will then be taken up.

Mr. Fanning has been authoritatively spoken of as the greatest advocate of prohibition in the United States.

In his youth he consecrated his life to warfare against the saloon, and commenced his campaign against the liquor traffic. For more than a quarter of a century he has traveled about the United States and Canada, and has been the life's work, and he has probably made more speeches against the saloon during those years than any other living person. It is said of him that his Irish wit, his platform experience and his honesty of purpose make him one of the most effective speakers in the field.

GUNPLAY MAXWELL IS NOW AT REST

Former "Bad Man" Followed to Grave by Wife and Few Friends.

SLEEPING FINAL SLEEP IN THE CITY CEMETERY

Several Floral Tributes Placed Upon the Mound by Old Acquaintances.

The last act in the sensational life drama of Clarence L. Maxwell, familiarly known as "Gunplay" Maxwell, a man of many aliases, whose wild career was cut short Monday afternoon at Price by a bullet fired by Deputy Sheriff Johnston, was enacted Wednesday afternoon, when his remains were interred with the simplest of ceremonies in the City cemetery in this city.

The funeral was held at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon from the chapel at the undertaking parlors of Eber W. Hall, and about a dozen people, including Mrs. Jessie Seaman or Maxwell, the second wife of the dead man, and her three children, by her first husband, were present. Mrs. A. Maxwell, the first wife, was not present. Four carriages and the hearse formed the procession to the cemetery, and no religious services of any kind were held. Several beautiful floral tributes were placed on the mound, which marks the last resting place of Maxwell, after the grave had been filled in, and these were presented either as tokens of respect from friends or as mementoes of sympathy to the few devoted souls who deeply mourn the death of the man.

Following all the sensational stories which have issued as a result of the death of Maxwell, the reviews of his last career, and the exaggerated accounts of his crimes and exploits, it was the desire of the dead man's surviving relatives and few personal acquaintances, to have the last rites over the body carried out in as simple and quiet a manner as possible, and this was accomplished.

"The funeral," said one man who was among the few present at the services, Tuesday evening, "was entirely without any extraordinary features. In fact it was carried out in the most simple and quiet manner possible."

The second Mrs. Maxwell was present, together with a few other persons. There were a few floral remembrances, four carriages, and that is all. There were no religious services at the chapel or at the grave. The modest expense of the funeral will be defrayed by the woman who was the chief mourner at the funeral."

Body Brought From Price.

The body of Maxwell arrived in this city at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning in charge of E. J. Marnell, foreman for F. W. Hall, who went to Price to take charge of the remains, at the solicitation of the second Mrs. Maxwell. It remained at the undertaking parlors until taken to the cemetery. Whatever differences as to the disposal of the body were settled at Price, and the body was taken to the cemetery in a private hearse, and found on his body after his death, may exist between the two Mrs. Maxwells, will have to be settled between them.

And so close the life story of "Gunplay" Maxwell. Whatever his tempestuous career may have been, matters little; his earthly record rests with him in the grave.

ANOTHER NEWS "FAKE" THOROUGHLY EXPLODED

Believing that the Deseret News had purposely misrepresented the facts in their published account of the slot machine cases, which account appeared in that paper Wednesday afternoon and in which account it was intimated that the license collector could not tell by his books what had become of the money which had been collected from the various slot machines, looked into the facts and interviewed O. G. Hemmaway, of the firm of Hemmaway & Moser, regarding the matter. After reading the account which appeared in the Deseret News Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Hemmaway said:

"To begin with, I will say that the statement in the News is wrong regarding the amount. To the best of my knowledge and belief the amount collected for the city by the police department of the various machines owned and operating slot machines was $600, and not $800, as reported in the News. Each man who operated a slot machine was charged $3 as a license. About this time the courts rendered a decision to the effect that a license could not be collected on a slot machine, because it was a gambling device."

After the collection of the money was made. The money was held and before Chief Pitt, the police department retired, Sorenson and I came to me and asked me if I would sign a list he had which contained all of the names of persons who had paid a license as his fee for operating a slot machine. I signed the list and in fact everyone who had paid a license signed it also. In fact, I told Sorenson, Christensen that in the event any one did not sign the list, I would explain the matter to that person."

"After the list had been signed, Mr. Christensen took it to Chief Pitt, the police department, who turned it over to Mr. Christensen, as the city could not receive it. It was thoroughly understood that he was to receive the money and to keep it. I did not receive it and did not keep it."

Assistant City Attorney Rogers was asked regarding the slot machine cases and said:

"Following the decision of Judge Diehl that the slot machines were not gambling devices in the true meaning of that term, the council and the license assessor wanted to collect a license on all of the machines. Acting under the orders of the license assessor and the council, Chief Pitt of the police department collected $3 per machine, amounting in the aggregate to something like $600."

"About this time it was asked of the city attorney whether the machines were gambling devices. Following the decision of Judge Diehl, the council and the license assessor wanted to collect a license on all of the machines. Acting under the orders of the license assessor and the council, Chief Pitt of the police department collected $3 per machine, amounting in the aggregate to something like $600."
